History of the Rolls Royce

The 20th century marked the beginning of an extraordinary partnership between two of the most innovative minds of the moment. Henry Royce, a successful engineer and Charles Rolls, owner of one of the UK's first motor car dealerships, agreed to sell motor cars under the name Rolls-Royce.

In 1907, the Silver Ghost was declared 'The Best Car in the World' after its record breaking success. Travelling from London to Glasgow 27 times – covering 14,371 consecutive miles – the iconic motor car broke the world record for a non-stop motor run.

In the 1930s, Rolls-Royce broke world records on land and sea. And automation saw the arrival of Phantom III – the first ever Rolls-Royce to be built with a V12 engine. The 1940s saw new develops in craftsmanship and design. Until 1959, each Silver Wraith had an individual, coach-built body.

The 1950s marked the start of a long-standing relationship between Rolls-Royce and the royal family. Replacing Daimler as the preferred motor car supplier to the British monarchy, Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth took delivery of the first Phantom IV in 1950.

The 1970s was a challenging decade for Rolls-Royce but, following re-launch as two separate companies, the decade saw the arrival of two exciting new motor cars. Under Rolls-Royce Motors Limited, the stylish two-door Corniche was created. The Camargue was coach-built on a Silver Shadow platform with styling by iconic Italian coachbuilder, Pininfarina. By 1980, British defense company Vickers had bought Rolls-Royce Motors Limited, producing Rolls-Royce alongside Bentley motor cars. The 1990s marked a new chapter in the marque's history when BMW bought the rights to produce Rolls-Royce motor cars. With the change came a brand new manufacturing facility: the Home of Rolls-Royce at Goodwood. It was here that an exciting new chapter would begin.

New Year's Eve Chicken Wings

- cooking spray
  - 2 quarts vegetable oil for frying
  - 5 pounds chicken wings, separated at joints, tips discarded
  - 1 cup hot wing sauce
  - 1 pound carrots, cut into sticks
  - 6 ribs celery, cut into sticks
  - 2 cups blue cheese salad dressing
1. Preheat oven to 375 degrees F (190 degrees C). Spray a baking sheet with cooking spray.
  2. Heat vegetable oil in a large pot or deep fryer to 375 degrees F (190 degrees C).
  3. Rinse wings in a colander and pat very dry with paper towels. Deep-fry wings in batches of 5 or 6 until partially cooked, about 10 minutes; drain on paper towels and let wings cool slightly. Return wings to the hot oil and fry a second time until golden brown, 6 to 8 minutes per batch. Drain on paper towels.
  4. Transfer wings to a large mixing bowl and toss with hot wing sauce to coat. Use tongs to transfer wings to prepared baking sheet in a single layer. Brush wings with any leftover wing sauce.
  5. Bake in the preheated oven until surface of wings is nearly dry, about 15 minutes. Serve on platters with carrot sticks, celery sticks, and blue cheese dressing.
